

King County North Creek Interceptor Sewer Project

Construction update- January 14, 2016: work continuing in the Canyon Park Business Center – including road closures and detours

King County is constructing a major sewer line that serves portions of Bothell, Mill Creek and unincorporated Snohomish County. This project will provide needed upgrades for this line.

Beginning around Monday, January 25, the county's contractor will begin installing dewatering wells along some of the streets within the business center:

- Work includes street closures, starting along 223rd Street SE between 29th Dr. SE and 23rd Dr. SE.
- Signs for closures and detours will be in place.
- At least one vehicle access point will be provided to buildings at all times. Some mail boxes may need to be temporarily moved out of the work areas.
- Work will be in stages, and is planned to progress west, along 223rd Street to 23rd Dr. SE, then to 222nd St. SE, then north to 220th St SE.
- Work at the intersections of 23rd Dr. SE / 222nd St SE and 20th Ave. SE / 220th St. SE will be done on the weekends to limit traffic and commute disruptions.
- After the wells are installed, the contractor plans to begin installing pipes along these same streets, which will also involve street closures and detours.
- Additional work will be taking place along 228th St. SE (outside of business park), just west of 29th Dr. SE. Work will take place at night and last about a month.

Work is expected last 2-3 months, and has been coordinated with business park management, individual tenants, the City of Bothell, Community Transit and USPS.
